

What is Vibrational Medicine?

“We are not completely isolated from our environment and should therefore consider the effect of natural and man-made environments on our well-being. Our relationship with our family, friends, work colleagues and our social interactions in general also play an important part on our wellness. Our personal economic problems and those of our country also affect us. Our cherished products of modern technology have harmful side effects. In order to tackle all those different aspects that actually include all fields of life, we have to find a common factor, which we can use as our starting point to understand all those different aspects of our well being.

A common factor to everything would be ENERGY. Physics tell us that everything is energy; even what we consider solid matter is actually energy. All life functions are based on energy interactions. Energy interactions are the hidden dimension at the core of any perceivable physiological function. In all of the above areas, well-being is the result of energy balance. Any disturbance of that balance produces either over or under activity, which manifests as a problem.

We know energy through its manifestations in different forms: heat, magnetism, electricity... etc. We know how to use certain formulas to quantify and use the different forms of energy, that ultimately gave us modern technology, but we still do not know the essence of the energy that can take one form or another.

Besides the traditional types of Energy that manifest as heat, motion...etc, many other forms of energy can actually be defined. We must include vitality, emotions, and thoughts, into energy's repertoire. Then a whole new picture arises which calls for new Physics to grasp it.

Through Quantum Physics we know that energy cannot be created from nothing or destroyed back to nothing. So this energy must have been there within the nothing before the universe started. It was an attribute or ability existent in what we term as nothing. So energy is “something” that when dormant is perceived as “nothing “ and when it moves then it becomes something.

Anything that exists begins with movement. Energy produces the original movement. It brings something into existence, into the so-called world of reality; from the no-thing-ness mystics call the void. Anything we do that produces different types of motion transforms that energy into different forms so that we can perceive it. The only difference between “ nothing “ and “ every-thing “ is just motion. We do not know what it is that moves. All that we can know is that this motion creates duality of opposites, and that this motion is balanced in a way that we could call geometrical; a balance that creates complementarities out of opposites; which gives the possibility of all levels of creation, including our physical reality.

Furthermore, this balanced motion creates time and space, which manifests on many levels according to its mode and level of perception. Attributes of energy can only exist within time and space because we need their opposites to perceive them. The perception of the attributes of energy is therefore not possible beyond the limits of time and space. We can try as we will, but will be still left with the unanswerable question: WHAT IS THE ESSENCE OF ENERGY?

The essence of dormant energy, before the big bang, is beyond duality, time and space, and attribution. However, the attributes must, one way or another, already exist within the prior energy collective. Beyond duality every attribute in its extreme is coupled with its opposite and exists inseparably as one unified field. Existence-extinction, dead-alive, up-down, right-left seem meaningless to us. We cannot perceive or comprehend these dual pairs. Our awareness is based on splitting duality into time and space. The inclusion of opposites as unified wholes is beyond our perceptual reckoning.

The first motion is however a very special big bang. It has within it a sort of a program that governs all aspects of this motion, just like the program that governs the growth of a seed to become a tree. To govern a motion one must be aware of it, and have a law to apply to the motion. Awareness implies consciousness. But consciousness is an advanced state of life. Laws to balance motion must at the very least intuitively apprehend balance itself. Therefore, more than intelligence is needed to govern the laws of balance that maintain the known Universe. Wisdom must direct the laws of balance and maintain the essential flow.

What is Vibrational Medicine?

Energy whether as nothing, anything, something, or everything, is the pure essence of consciousness and wisdom. Even in its primordial state of nothingness it is already on the highest and most sophisticated level of life.

If energy is conscious and therefore “alive“ then every manifestation or transformation of that energy is just a different action with all the properties of the essence manifested according to the attribute of that motion. But before we go further we must understand that, as we have shown above. The attribute that manifests as consciousness within time and space is released from the original CONSCIOUS-UNCONSCIOUS state. So everything in the universe whether it is a stone, plant, or animal has the original essence of wisdom and consciousness tailored to its specific function. Even in the same being the consciousness and wisdom of a blood cell, an immune cell, a water molecule, or our human consciousness are just the original essence doing different functions.

No Physicist can possibly know what energy really is because Physics has not yet acknowledged the effects of emotions and thought as a form of energy, not to speak of all the undiscovered realms and dimensions. It seems that spiritual doctrines were always nearer to the truth, and now alternative Sciences are catching up. In the beginning, there was THE WORD is more accurate, because it involves the meaning, consciousness, and wisdom, not found in the big bang.

If everything is energy; and energy means conscious awareness and wisdom manifesting in different forms; then everything is aware of everything else. Everything is in some form of communication. But since energy manifests differently in different types of motion, the secondary levels of awareness formed in every type of creation are different. This makes awareness and communication difficult, just like people speaking different languages. The communication must be happening on an inner common level, in a common language, not necessarily understood by the “personalized“ level of each type of creation.

The so-called “ language of the heart “ that the mystics speak about is slowly merging to be more scientific than expected. This type of communication comes from the world of Music. Pythagoras, the Greek father of mathematics and music who spent 22 years in Egypt and was actually initiated in the “ Egyptian Temple Sciences “, described the motion of the stars in the sky as “ Music of the Spheres “ showing that there was a common language (spoken in Egyptian temples!) between music and astronomy.

Different levels of energy interact through resonance to produce harmony. Like the strings of a piano, if we strike one then every eighth string will vibrate producing a sound. Our piano here extends in both directions to span the whole universe from the smallest to the largest. During resonance all the strings of similar quality in the universe interact. The change on each string is an exchange of information, sensed as quality. We cannot separate the physical from the emotional or the mental levels of energy. The common factor between these levels is energy, which manifests differently on every level within us. But energy will also be affected by resonance with similar levels in our environment. This is what we call the Unified Field, or Collective Conscious. We are constantly affected by and in turn affect the collective vitality, emotional, and mental abstract energy levels around us.

When two energy fields are in resonance, and exchange information, something happens after the resonance is over. The two systems do not go back to their original state. Part of the new information leaves an impression on the energy system. Systems then, are in constant evolution through resonance or interaction. There is a sort of MEMORY in every energy system. All contact between systems creates a connection not only to everything it comes into contact with but also to the original source of the motion.

If in every interaction between two energy systems, which we can also refer to as memory systems, an information exchange takes place, then these systems are in constant evolution and growth. Interaction, communication, memory, and evolution affect the quality of interaction between systems and what results is a certain mode of awareness and perception. That results in the creation of an individual reality to that system, which in turn leads to the formation of a personality that will characterize the communication and interaction of the system. So everything in the universe from the atom, grain of sand, plants, humans, to the solar system, up to the whole universe has a personality of some sort. This personality interacts within its own perception of time and space and might not be easily perceived by other systems within other time and space dimensions.

What is Vibrational Medicine?

From these core concepts we will deal with holistic health as: ENERGY BALANCE on all levels internal and external to our system, individual and collective. We will understand that the collective levels are a form of life, and part of the psyche of the Earth Being, with which we interact. Once we understand that we are dealing with another form of Being with a personality that can interact and react, then our whole outlook to the environment and its reaction through nature's forces will change. From the smallest virus or bacteria to the cells of life, the human being, the Earth, we find a form of Being living within another form of Being. The whole universe is like one great multilevel Being all the way down to the smallest particles within the atoms, which are alive in their own way and have their own memory and personality." -Dr. Ibrahim Karim. ©1997 BioGeometry Energy Systems Ltd.

These core concepts are the basis for modern energy medicine, often called vibrational medicine. The vibrational healer develops the ability to shift levels of conscious thought which bridges the communication between differing energy systems. Like creating a channel between two streams or translating between languages, the vibrational healer engages different forms and fosters a relationship that promotes balance and order between seemingly separate systems. This facilitates greater wholeness which manifests through the harmonious integration of lesser attributes into a vaster whole. Systems work more efficiently with less effort. These in turn, support the systems directly above and below to become more efficient.

As above, so below; as within, so without - Infinitely